

Oh, Well, Anyway, Jeff Was Headliner

By "Bud" Fisher

AT THE PLAY.

Plays may come, and plays may go, but "Every Little Movement" is still heard on the Rialto. The cast presenting "Madame Sherry" last night was good—remarkably so, when one considers that the play has been on the road for three years, and that Lina Abarnell who originated the role, has long since abandoned it.

Charles Riggs, business manager of the company, declares that the women have made "Madame Sherry." This is a fact unprecedented in the modern history of musical comedy. The dainty character of Yvonne appeals to the feminine part of the audience. Last night this role was carried in a most winning manner by Gypsy Dale, a demure little English actress who has been in this country only a few weeks. She sings with rare charm, and is as graceful as a thistle.

The cast was exceptionally good—Hellen Mostyn as Uncle Theophilus, the part originated by Charles Ross in the east, pleased the comedy fans. He could emulate "I'm stumped" in a perpetual state of amazement had lasted for three seasons. Lulu, aesthetic dancing mistress, was excellent—so were Edouard and Phillips. The warm reception awarded the players was, unfortunately, not augmented by the frigidity of the weather. Cast and audience shivered sympathetically—the one in inadequate parkies, the other in furs. The thermometer was playing with the zero mark outside the theater.

The popularity of "Madame Sherry" does not diminish—Peppita (thriller), Yvonne charms, and Catherine amuses as emphatically as of yore.
